*When gowns are soiled, not fit for wear,
Their freshness gone, spots everywhere;
To have them cleansed is little trouble,
It makes their worth to you just double.
And when the sun and wind together
Have faded them in many places,
We dye them in a skillful way,
Until of spots you'll find no traces.*

Stevens=Duryea Sixes

A single cylinder car is satisfactory up to a certain horsepower; then the two-cylinder car is more desirable, but beyond a certain horsepower the two-cylinder is better replaced by the four-cylinder. And just as surely as the above is true, the six-cylinder car will inevitably replace the four in the higher horsepowers.

Four-cylinder cars will be made by the different manufacturers indefinitely. We are making both fours and sixes and expect to continue doing so. Have made two-cylinder cars for six years.

But the fact remains that a man who buys a high powered, high priced, four-cylinder car to-day will not have an up-to-date proposition when the public are thoroughly educated as to the advantages of the six, which will simply be a matter of a few months.

By High Powered Fours we mean cars of 40 horsepower or over.

DO YOU REMEMBER HOW MUCH YOU RECEIVED FOR YOUR HIGH POWERED TWO-CYLINDER WHEN YOU TRADED IT FOR A FOUR?

The time is drawing near when it will be just as difficult to sell or trade in a high powered four as it was the two.

Avoid this inevitable condition of affairs by getting one of the

Stevens=Duryea Sixes

Then in twelve months' time you will not be "wishing you had."

We have a few new and second-hand two-cylinder Stevens-Duryea cars at reduced prices. Over 400 of these in constant use in New England.

LESS 33 $\frac{1}{3}$ PER CENT

BECAUSE of our success, we have decided to give the manufacture of distinctive and superior furniture, with the work of interior decorations, our more complete attention.

To effect this policy we will dispose of our stock of the more usual lines of manufactured furniture at 33 $\frac{1}{3}$ PER CENT DISCOUNT.

The sale begins MONDAY MORNING, MAY 6

There are nearly one thousand articles and we feel sure you can find something worthy of your use at a very low price.

This is a special opportunity for those furnishing summer homes.

The sale includes upholstery and drapery goods as well as furniture.

A large number of choice Oriental Rugs will be offered at especially reduced prices.

We shall continue to show in our warerooms exclusive specialties for home furnishing other than our own make, and plan to make this line more distinctive and exclusive than in the past.

We shall continue to be the exclusive representative of the famous Craftsman furniture made by Mr. Gustav Stickley in Syracuse.

Willie—Say, pa, what is a “fruitless search?”

His Father—When you try to find cherries on banana trees.

“So Johnny is almost in high school?”

“Yes; he’s had splendid marks in whittling and beadwork and baking powder biscuits. If he were only a little more careful in sewing squares I shouldn’t be a bit afraid about his passing.”

“What, then,” asked the new clerk, “do you consider the best method of keeping books?”

“There’s only one sure way,” replied the old hand.

“And what’s that?”

“Forget to return them.”

“My wife simply pelted me with beautiful flowers when I came home from the club last night.”

“How nice!”

“Not much. They were all in flower pots.”

Oliver Herford, the witty artist and versemaker, was one day piloting a friend from “up the state” through the Metropolitan museum. The friend seemed especially interested in the statuary. “I’ve often wondered,” said he, “whether sculpture was the most difficult of the arts.”

“Oh, I don’t know,” remarked Herford, with effected nonchalance; “all the sculptor has to do is to take a block of marble and a chisel; then knock off all the marble he doesn’t want.”

HOLLIS ST. THEATRE

NEXT ATTRACTION

THREE FOR ONE ROLE

In many a play the leading actress assumes several characters, but in the great comedy success, "The Prince Chap," we have the novelty of a rôle requiring three actresses. The heroine grows up as the action progresses and only an elastic lady from the museum could contract and expand to fit the requirements. Claudia starts as a child left by her mother, a model, to the care of a poor artist. He would shirk the charge but can't resist the little toddler when she gently forces paternal duties upon him. The getting of a supper for her, the undressing of her for the night, the hearing of her ingenuous prayer and the putting of her to sleep with a fairy story make you feel like a spy upon an intimate home incident. The tale he tells is about his own love of a "Princess" Alice, far away from his London loft in the city of New York. He makes Alice a princess to this rodding little Claudia, for in his love dreams Alice is a princess to him. And he tells it well, for the actor is that Cyril Scott who deserted from comedy ten years ago to go into extravaganza and now comes back.

"Is this man who loves her so a prince?" asks the sleepy child.

"Oh, a sort of a prince chap," the artist replies.

Nothing in the many plays produced the past year is so insinuating in its charm or so touching in its appeal as this scene of the lone child and the lonely artist. Little Claudia gets into our hearts when we see her again, three years later, and in the third act, when she marries the prince chap she further endears herself to us.

Vernon Blackburn may be said to have added a new word to domestic intercourse. At the end of a dinner with two other married men he proposed that they should rejoin their respective spice. If mouse takes mice in the plural, why should spouse not take spice?

"Charles, dear," said young Mrs. Torkins, "why do they call racing calculations 'dope'? I thought that was a slang name for a drug."

"You're quite right," was the answer. "They call it that because all it generally gets you is a pleasant dream and a rude awakening."

The ingenuity of the Chinese in surmounting difficulties is well illustrated by the following dialogue, which recently took place on the Imperial Chinese railway:

Traveler—I wish to ship these two dogs to Pekin. What is the rate?

Railway official—No got any rate for dog; one dog all same one sheep; one sheep all same two pig; can book four pig.

Traveler—But one dog is only a puppy; he ought to go for half fare.

Railway official—Can go, all right? Then turning to his clerk, "Write three pig," he said.

"Bessie, how many sisters has your new playmate?"

"She has one, mamma. She tried to deceive me by saying she had two half-sisters, but I expect she didn't know that I studied fractions."

Prof. Brander Mathews, the brilliant and learned essayist, was ridiculing, at Columbia college, high-sounding names for commonplace things—tensorial parlor for barber shop, funeral director for undertaker, and so on.

"Two scrubwomen were talking the other day," he said.

"What's yer son Billy doin' now, Mrs. Smith?" asked the first.

"He's on the stage," the other answered.

"Drivin' a stage, do you mean?"

"Drivin' a stage? Nonsense! Willie is an actor. He's a light comedian."

"A light comedian? What part does he play?"

"He plays a silent part behind a black curtain, with his mouth to a hole forinst a candle, and when Alkali Ike shoots at the candle Willie blows it out."

In order to enjoy life a man must be a little miserable occasionally.

The beautiful leading lady was in deep distress.

"In spite of all I can do," she sobbed, "I fear that I am going stale. I have lost my diamonds. I have lost my pearls, my three husbands by divorce, my imported bulldog and my automobile. Now, is there anything else I can lose that will once more bring me before the limelight?"

The manager shrugged his shoulders.

"Yes," he replied coldly, "lose your affectation and learn how to act."

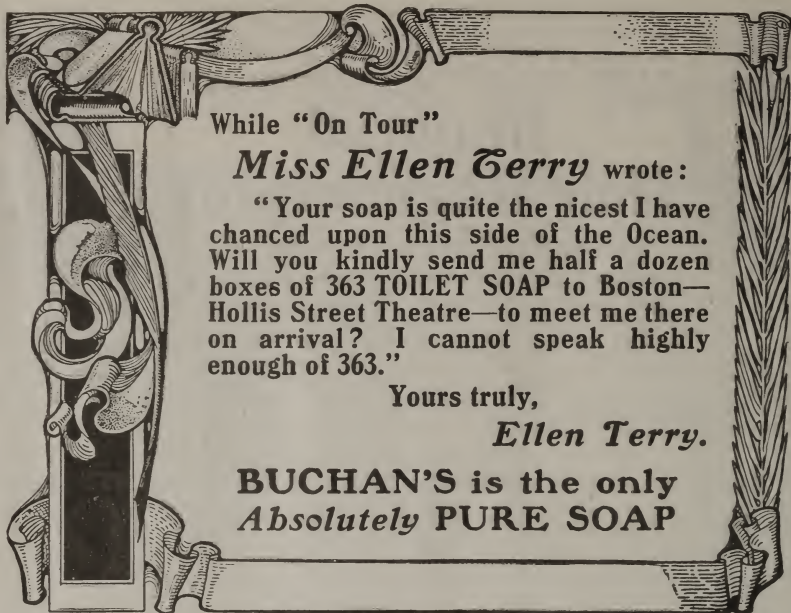

"I have often stood in a slaughter house," observed the fleshy man from Chicago, "while the butchers were killing hogs on all sides of me."

"Oh," exclaimed the tender-hearted but tactless New Haven girl, "weren't you dreadfully afraid?"

James G. Blaine's old donkey is still roaming around Bar Harbor, Me., at the age of forty years; can't the Washington Zoo capture this animal for exhibition purpose?

Visitor—You say you don't know definitely where your husband is?

Mrs. Deffabit—No; I can't tell exactly, but I think he said, when he went out, that he was going to attend a soaker.

While "On Tour"

Miss Ellen Terry wrote:

"Your soap is quite the nicest I have chanced upon this side of the Ocean. Will you kindly send me half a dozen boxes of 363 TOILET SOAP to Boston—Hollis Street Theatre—to meet me there on arrival? I cannot speak highly enough of 363."

BREWSTER'S MILLIONS

"Your son, madam, seems to have a fractured ankle; what caused the accident?"

"Oh, doctor, he was trying to bring the Sunday paper through the door when he unfortunately dropped the entire edition on his foot."

At a recital it so happened that two ladies were making their way to their seats at the very moment Von Buelow finished his introduction of the first movement of Beethoven's "Sonata Pathetic." This so irritated him that he purposely commenced the allegro at such an absurdly slow pace as to make the quavers in the bass correspond exactly to the time of the ladies' footsteps. As may be imagined, they felt on thorns, and hurried on as fast as they could, while Von Buelow accelerated his tempo in sympathy with their increasing pace.

"Pop, didn't people own their own dress suits in the Bible days?"

"Dress suits? What are you talking about?"

"Well, it says that the people rent their clothes."

"I suppose our friend Hussel is still working on that claim of his," said the Easterner.

"No," replied the man from the western mining town, "he's gone to Europe for a rest. He's taken out so much rich ore lately he doesn't have to work."

"Ah, resting on his ores, as it were."

"To what shall I compare you?"
ranted the ardent youth.

"Never mind about comparing me," coldly responded the girl. "I shall be compelled to decline you."

"My Elsa is a good girl, only she tells everything that she does and hears!"

"No, I don't, mamma! I never told anybody that you have false teeth!"

Many a good man has been lost to a great cause through his deferment to the prejudices of others.

Puffing and blowing, the fat passenger began to climb to the upper berth in the sleeping car.

"Pretty hard work, isn't it?" said the man in the lower berth."

"It is," answered the fat passenger
"for a man of my weight."

"How much do you weigh, may I ask?"

"Three hundred and eighty-seven pounds?"

"Hold on! Take this one!" exclaimed the other, his hair beginning to rise on end. "I'd rather sleep in the upper berth anyway. The ventilation is better."

Guest (confidentially) — They do a wretched business here! The landlord owes me three marks, but I'll have to wait till you pay your check so he'll have the money to pay with.

Second Guest—Sorry, but I can't help you! I haven't any money, and I am only waiting till they throw me out!

"Jinks is hopeless!"

"What's wrong?"

"He has married a chorus girl. Everybody knows that manicure attendants are the thing in freak weddings just now."

Grocer—I pay my boys $3 per week.

Applicant—Will I have a chance to rise?

Grocer—You bet. You'll rise every morning at 4 a. m., or lose your job.

"See here," cried the artist, who had come to complain about the materials, "I can't imagine anything worse than your paints."

"That's strange," replied the dealer, "Don't you ever use your imagination on your painting?"

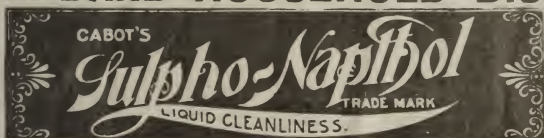

Sister Smith—I hear that Mrs. and Mr. Scattering are to separate.

Sister Brown—Sho! Do tell. What's the trouble? Tell us all about it.

Sister Jones—That ain't so. They're goin' on a trip together. So there, now.

Sister Smith—Well, maybe you know mor'n anybody else, but my daughter's husband's brother heard Scattering say that he was goin' abroad and his wife was goin' along. Now if that ain't two different directions, you tell me.
